Leveraging the National Standards Development Process.

Learn more about how you and your organization can actively contribute to establishing baseline training standards for our nation's cybersecurity workforce. In partnership with the American National Standards Institute, NICE is bringing together the public and private sectors to promote and facilitate a voluntary consensus standards process for cybersecurity training and professional development. Participants will gain insights from a Department of Defense case study, in which the standards process was adopted as the foundation for building a qualification standard for over 75,000 IT/Cyber personnel.

- Fran Schrotter, Senior Vice President & Chief Operating Officer, American National Standards Institute

- Dr. Roy Swift, American National Standards Institute

- George Bieber, Director, IA Workforce Improvement Program, Department of Defense Chief Information Officer

- TBD , INCITS/Selected Standards Developer

- (Facilitator) Roy Burgess, Department of Homeland Security